Equal inclusion in mayoral forums is a must for candidate Peter Shahid

Six candidates are running for Mayor of Charleston. More than a dozen mayoral forums have been scheduled between now and Election Day. For the most part, it is assumed all candidates have been asked to participate in each forum, but unfortunately, this is not the case.

“Not inviting every mayoral candidate to every forum is unacceptable,” said Shahid. “It is important to me that organizations ask all six mayoral candidates to participate in their respective events. I will not take part in any debate or forum that does not invite all six candidates. There needs to be a level playing field in this race.”

Shahid and his campaign team have spent the past 24 hours contacting the organizations hosting each forum to confirm the inclusion of all six mayoral candidates.

Shahid has been a member of Charleston City Council since 2016, serving District 9. Over the past seven years, he created the Stormwater Department and served as the Chairperson of the West Ashley Revitalization Commission and the Public Safety Committee.
